HOW TO READ HISTORY.

THE first step for the student of history to take is, to perfectly acquaint himself with the division of history into its EIGHT NATURAL PERIODS, and thus learn to assemble the events of history into those eight groups.

In order to properly do this, you should know the date of the beginning and ending of each period; the number of years included therein; the title of the period and the prominent event that marks the opening and closing of each. In the study or review of history you should read and reflect upon the event with relation to the period to which it belongs, whether at the beginning, near the middle or toward the close of its respective period.

That you may guide your researches along these lines we have given the following suggestions, which will give you your first step in this important study.

PERIOD I.

DISCOVERY AND EXPLORATION.
FROM 1000 TO 1590,

590 YEARS.

FROM THE VISIT OF THE NORSEMAN
TO THE ABANDONMENT OF THE SEARCH FOR THE LOST COLONY.

The reasons why Periods I, II, III and IV are so divided will be found in the explanations at the end of Period I.

The Twentieth Century System of American History Study.

NOTE: The figure at the end of each question represents the page in the Library of American History where the answer may be found.

Period I.

From A. D. 1000 to 1590—590 Years.

1. What were the three Americas on the evening of October 11, 1492? Had Columbus been able at that time to ascend to sufficient height that he could have looked down upon the great New World, what would he have seen? 1

2. What city of the present day, with armies in its streets, would he have seen to the west of him? What old empire with traces of cities and temples to his southwest? What would have attracted his attention in the highlands of Peru? And what evidences of past presence of human beings possessed of intellect and ingenuity would he have seen high up in the Andes Mountains? Besides, what class of beings would he have seen scattered everywhere that possessed neither the inclination nor ingenuity to have wrought these great things upon the face of nature? Hence what must be the conclusions as regards this great world in the wild some time prior to the first visit of Columbus? 2

3. What can be said of the discovery by Columbus as compared with all the other notable incidents of the world? 3

4. What nature of narrative is necessary to a proper recital and appreciation of the epoch of discovery? 3

5. How many references to visits of the Norsemen to our shores are found in ancient records of Iceland? 11

6. What noted European author, writing in 1075 (four hundred and seventeen years prior to 1492), makes mention of America, or Vineland, and of the visits of the Norsemen? 12

7. What maps of 1367 (one hundred and twenty-five years prior to 1492) referred to America as the New Land, and possibly supplied the information that later led the Cabots on their first journey, since they followed to a great extent the route traveled by the Norsemen? 14

8. What may be said of Thorwald Ericson? When was he on our shores, and what part did he visit? 16

INDIANS.

9. When, where, and by whom was the first Indian murdered? 18

10. Who are ethnologists? Into how many families do ethnologists divide the American Indian? 20

11. Is it fair to suppose that there are more Indians in the United States to-day than ever before? 22

12. What is the means of subsistence of Indians in their natural state? What did they use as weapons, and how did they obtain them? 22

13. What was the religious belief and burial custom of the American Indians? 25

14. In what part of America did the Cliff Dwellers thrive, and what evidences have we of marked civilization among them? 25

15. For what purpose is it now believed that the mounds found in various parts of our country were built? What state is richest in these mysterious earthworks, and to what number? 26

16. What is the Iroquois League, or "Six Nations"? When, where, by whom, and for what purpose were they organized? 30–31

17. Who was the first president of the League of Six Nations, and what mementoes of that election is sacredly preserved by them unto this day? 32

18. What are some of the laws and customs of the Iroquois League? 32

19. How are the Six Nations at this time distributed? 33

20. What is the value of the reservations occupied by the New-York members of the Iroquois League? 33

21. What evidence of advancement and civilization is shown from the assessor's return of the New-York Indians? 33

COLUMBUS.

22. When and where was Christopher Columbus born? 36

23. What was the vocation of his father? 36

24. Whom and when did Columbus marry? 36

25. What voyage did Columbus make in 1477 that possibly had much to do toward molding his determination to make a voyage westward from European shores? 38

26. Of what dishonorable act was King John of Portugal guilty in his dealings with Columbus? 39

27. When did Columbus become a "tramp," and in what way did this fact eventually lead to the discovery of America in 1492? 39

28. What noted priest of the Catholic Church is entitled to much credit for the assistance given Columbus in his time of need? 41

29. What was Columbus's answer when asked by the King of Spain what he expected in the event of success? 41

30. For what is the bridge of Pinos noted, and what offer of sacrifice by Queen Isabella was instrumental in making it famous? 42

31. At what place and on what date was the contract between Columbus and the sovereigns of Spain signed? 42

32. What effect on the sailors of Palos did Columbus's arrival and declaration of purpose have? 45

33. How many persons set sail with Columbus? Name the place, date, and time of day he set sail. 46

34. What were the names of the vessels constituting the fleet, and who commanded each? 46

35. What act of generosity did the King of Spain bestow upon our government prior to the Columbian Exposition in commemoration of the first voyage of Columbus? 46

36. In what state of mind were the sailors who accompanied Columbus after leaving the Canary Islands? 46

37. What discovery shocked Columbus after several days' voyage?
46

38. What can you say regarding the prevailing opinion at the present time concerning that discovery?

39. What is the Sargasso Sea, and what explanation can you give for its existence?
48

40. What reward was offered by Spain to him who should first discover land?
48

41. What awful threat did the mutinous men make and prepare to put in execution when evidences of land were seen? What were those evidences? What promise of reward did Columbus make to the first man who discovered land?
48–49

DISCOVERIES.

42. Who was the first man of Columbus's fleet to see land on the morning of October 12, 1492, in consequence of which the cannon of the Pinta was fired? What apparent injustice was afterwards done this man?
49

43. What is the present name of the island now believed to be the land first discovered?
50

44. Describe the banner carried ashore by Columbus.
50

45. What did the natives call the island on which Columbus landed? What name did Columbus give to it, and what do the English now call it?
50

46. What is said of the natives of these islands as found by Columbus and his associates?
50

47. What prominent island did Columbus visit on October 28, 1492, and what habit of the natives did he that day observe that has since been universally adopted? 51

48. What feeling toward the white men was manifested by the natives? 52

49. On what day of the week did Columbus set sail from Palos, discover America, and drop anchor at Palos on his return? 54

50. What became of the Santa Maria? 52

51. What can you say of the Spaniards who remained on the island of Hayti? What just fate befell them? 52

52. What was the name of the fort built from the timber of the Santa Maria? 52

53. What precaution did Columbus take on his return voyage to preserve to the world his discoveries? 53

54. In case Columbus had never reached port, would this precaution have proved of any value? 53

55. In what way and by whom was the attempt made to rob Columbus of the honor of his discoveries? What was the consequence? 54

56. Describe the reception given to Columbus on his return to Spain. 55

57. Describe the incident of the egg and tell why it was used. 55

58. Of what brutal act was Columbus guilty on his second voyage? 57

59. What important discovery did Columbus make unawares on his third voyage? 57

60. What brutal treatment did Francisco de Bobadilla inflict upon Columbus in sending him back to Spain? 58

61. When did Columbus last return from America, and in what condition was he? 58

62. With what great loss did Columbus meet after his last voyage? 58

63. Were the promised honors and rewards by the king and queen ever bestowed upon Columbus? 58

64. When and where did Columbus die? 58

65. What honor did the King of Spain confer on Columbus seven years after his death? What was his motive? 58

66. Where is the burial place of Columbus? 60

67. What theory was advanced by H. Yule Oldham in 1894 relative to an earlier discovery of America than in 1492? NOTE 61

68. Had Columbus failed to receive support from the King of Spain, is it probable that he would have received royal support elsewhere? If so, from whom, and upon what is your knowledge based? 62

69. When and by whom was the first discovery made upon which England based her claim in the American Continent? 63

70. Who was Amerigo Vespucci, and what was his business? 63

71. What can be said of the claims of Amerigo Vespucci to navigator and discoverer? 63

72. Who was thought to be instrumental in affixing the name America to the New World? 64

73. To what part of the New World did Spain direct her conquests and discoveries? 64

74. Who was Ponce de Leon, and what peculiar place does he occupy in the first period of our country's history? 64

75. Who gave the name "Tortugas" to the islands bearing this title, and why so called? 66

76. What honor was bestowed upon Ponce de Leon by the Castilian government as a reward for his discoveries? 66

77. What sad misfortune befell Ponce de Leon on his second visit to the Florida shore? 67

78. Describe D'Allyon's expedition, and by what was it characterized? 67

116. What constituted the Lost Colony, and what prominent personages were among the number? What was their possible fate? 96

117. With the exception of the weak colony at St. Augustine, Florida, how many years elapsed after the discovery of America until the first permanent settlement was established? 101

You will observe that the First Period of American History was devoted exclusively to "Discovery and Exploration," and by this title it is designated. It consisted of five hundred and ninety years (from A. D. 1000 to A. D. 1590). This is one hundred and eighty-one years longer than it has been since Christopher Columbus landed first on Cat Island. (In 2082 A. D., or one hundred and eighty-one years hence, it will be just five hundred and ninety years after Columbus's discovery of America.)

Over four hundred years of this time, however, is of little or no significance, so far as making this continent a home for the European is concerned, unless the records of Iceland, the writings of Bremen, or the Pizigani maps were directly or indirectly instrumental in planting in the heart of the Genoese navigator the desire to sail out upon the broad, dark bosom of the Atlantic, far beyond the limit of the horizon, and kept him going on and on, and on and on, conscious that four centuries before his day, others had found land in that direction. If this is a probability (and who will say it is not), then the voyage of the Norseman ranks well with that of Columbus.

The remarkable contemplation of this First Period of our history is the fact that at its close, nearly one hundred years after Columbus had declared to the world the result of his daring voyage, no human habitation other than what he found here on his arrival had yet been established on this continent.

During the first one hundred years after the discovery of America, however, there were no less than twenty-seven European expeditions to our shores and attempted settlements, some consisting of as many as six hundred persons, equipped with horses, cattle, swine, tools, and implements necessary for the establishment of a colony in a wilderness, in a manner that with proper industry, management, and prudent treatment of the Indians success and prosperity seemed assured; yet in spite of all these efforts when the century closed there was yet no settlement of Europeans on our continent, save the remnant of Menendez's band of cutthroats that rendezvoused at St. Augustine, Florida. Efforts, however, had been made to establish settlements elsewhere in Florida, South Carolina, Canada, and various other sections, all with the same result—failure. A number of them remained from one to ten years, and then abandoned their effort in discord and disgrace, or became the victims of the just vengeance of the abused and outraged red man.

Of these twenty-seven expeditions, twelve were Spanish, six French, and nine English. Six of the English expeditions were under the auspices and direct patronage of the big-hearted Walter Raleigh.

In 1602 there was an important voyage made that shortened the route and time between the Old World and the New (the same route now traveled by our ocean greyhounds between our Atlantic coast towns and Europe), thus stimulating a new interest in sea-voyages across the Atlantic. With this year (1602), then, begins the Second Period in American History, and this period extends to 1758. These one hundred and fifty-six years are devoted almost exclusively to colonization and settlement by people from the various nations of the sea-going world. Little or no thought of nation-building or independent government constructing was indulged in by the people during this one hundred and fifty-six years; hence Period II. is known as the period of "Colonization and Settlement."

At the close of Period II. the American colonists of all nationalities, having been industrious and prosperous, became the legitimate bones of contention for the kings and rulers of the Old World. In that year began the French and English war in America; and through the greed and avarice of those diseased and debauched crown-heads the minds of the people were turned from peace and industry to war and carnage, eventually ending in the plain people rising up in their might and establishing this Republic in spite of the protests of the idle, scheming, worthless kings and emperors of the Old World, and their thousands of agents, lawyers, and sympathizers on this side. Therefore the time of preparation for this momentous movement among the people to its consummation (from 1758 to 1783) constitutes a period by itself in the history of our nation—Period III., known as the Period of England and France in America.

PERIOD II.

COLONIZATION AND SETTLEMENT.
FROM 1602 TO 1758,

156 YEARS.

FROM GOSNOLD'S EXPEDITION
TO THE LEGAL ESTABLISHMENT OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND IN THE
"EMPIRE STATE OF THE SOUTH."

The reasons why Periods I, II, III and IV are so divided will be found in the explanations at the end of Period I.

Period II.

COLONIZATION AND SETTLEMENT

From A. D. 1602 to 1758—156 Years.

118. What was the first expedition to sail over the present track of ocean steamers from England to America? What prominent points along our Atlantic Coast were visited and named by the chief of this expedition? 102

119. What expedition was equipped and set sail in the spring of 1603? What prompted them to sail? 102

120. Who was king of England during the early part of Period II. of our history? What object led him to encourage a plan for colonizing America? 103

121. What prominent warrants from the court of James I., issued on April 20, 1606, formed the first systematic basis for colonizing what is now the United States? Who were the five most important persons named therein? 103

122. What were the provisions of the patents or grants mentioned? Give the names of these companies and territory covered by each. 103–106

123. What socialistic provision was imposed on the Plymouth and London companies? 106

VIRGINIA SETTLED.

124. Describe the life of Captain John Smith prior to his connection with the history of Jamestown. What constituted the resident council of the colonists of Newport's expedition? In what estimation was Smith held by his comrades? 110

125. What prominent people were among the Plymouth Company, and what two unsuccessful attempts were made to plant a settlement? 106–107

127. When and by whom were Cape Charles and Cape Henry named? When, by whom, and why was Point Comfort so named? 110

128. When was the settlement of Jamestown, Va., started? 110

129. What was the prevailing belief in Europe in 1607 regarding the Pacific Ocean, and how did this affect the instructions given the Jamestown settlers? 111

130. Who constituted the exploring party that first visited the lodge of the great chief Powhatan? Where was his palace, and what indication of his power among the Americans did they find? How far inland did they go? In what manner were they received by the Indians in coming and going? What occasioned the change? 112

131. Who was first president of the colony? Describe his management and the result. 113

132. How and in what way did Captain John Smith succeed as president of the colony? Describe his capture by the Indians. 114

133. What charge was brought against him by the malcontents of the colony after his return from captivity, and what event saved his life? 115

134. What class of men did Captain Newport bring with him on his second trip? 116

135. What unreasonable demand did the London Company make of Smith, and what was his answer? 116

136. What were the provisions of the new charter granted to the London Company by King James, May 23, 1609? In what way was Captain John Smith removed from the presidency, and who succeeded him? 118

137. How many persons were brought over by Captain Newport on his fourth trip, and of what character were they? What accident befell Smith, and what was the result? 119

138. Who had charge of affairs in the colony during Smith's absence until Lord De la Warr arrived? 119

139. In what manner were the Indians treated after Smith's departure? In what way did Pocahontas again demonstrate that she was possessed of the finer sensibilities of womankind? 119

140. What is known as the "Starving Time," and how many persons survived it? 119

141. What action was taken by Governor Gates, on his arrival, to save the survivors of the "Starving Time"? What event saved the settlement from ruin and abandonment? 120

142. What credit is due Lord De la Warr for effecting and forever establishing the settlement of the New World by the white man of the east? 120

143. Who planted the first settlement at Richmond and Appomattox? 120

144. What were the provisions of the third charter granted to the London Company? In what manner had the land been tilled previous to this time? 121

145. What dastardly deed did Captain Argall commit while on a cruise up the James River? What incident prevented war as a result? 121

146. What is the history of Pocahontas after her marriage? 122

147. What important event happened in 1619, and what was its effect on the settlers? 122

148. What other cargo of human freight sailed up the James River in 1619 that has since played an important part in our history? When and how many were they? 124

149. What were the provisions of the written constitution secured by the wise and thoughtful Governor Yeardley? 124

150. When and where did the Virginia Council provided for by the written constitution from the London Company first meet? What was it called, and what is said of it as a legislative body? 125

151. Who succeeded Powhatan as chief of the Indians in the vicinity of Jamestown? 125

152. Describe the terrible massacre which he committed on March 22, 1622? 125

153. Through what agency did Jamestown escape the massacre? Give the results of this outbreak. 126

154. What prompted King James in 1622 to change the charter of the London Company? How was it changed, and what did it eventually lead to? 126

155. When did King James die? In what way did his death benefit the colony? 127

156. When and why did the second massacre occur? What was its result? 127

157. What position was taken by the colonists during the troublous times of Cromwell? 127

158. Why is Virginia called the "Old Dominion"? 125

159. What were the provisions of the Navigation Acts? When were they in effect? 128

160. When and to whom did King Charles II. give all of Virginia? 128

BACON'S REBELLION.

161. When was Bacon's Rebellion, and what was its cause? 129

162. Who was Nathaniel Bacon, and how did he protect the settlers against the Indian attacks? 130

163. What brave and manly act did he do when he and his followers marched to Jamestown and demanded his commission as commander-in-chief of the militia, to which position he had been elected? 130

164. How long before the Declaration of Independence was this first attempt to overthrow the rule of monarchy and establish free government? 130

165. What became of Bacon and his party? What did King Charles say of Berkeley? 132

166. Why did the king recall the grant given to Culpeper and Arlington in 1673?
134

167. From what source did a lieutenant-governor give one hundred and fifty pounds for the foundation of William-and-Mary College? What lesson can we learn from this act?
134

168. Who was Sir Edmund Andros, and how long was he governor?
135

169. What was the increase in population of Virginia from 1700 to 1750? Name the capital at this time.
135

NEW YORK.

170. At the discovery of America, in 1492, which was the greatest maritime nation on the globe? What emblem was carried at the mast-heads of its ships, and what did it signify?
137

171. Why was Holland interested in America? By what company did she manifest her interest, and when was it formed?
137

172. Who was Henry Hudson, and what was he furnished the "Half Moon" to search for?
138

173. Describe his trip, and when did he discover the river bearing his name? What did he suppose it to be, and why did he change his mind?
138

174. How did Holland establish her claim to New York? Relate the fate of Hudson.
139

175. When and how was the germ of our great metropolis founded?
140

Having reached the end of Period II. of our nation's history, that we may better remember the events of this period, distinct and apart from the events of the other seven periods, we will now look back over this one hundred and fifty-six years, and see what has been accomplished since the end of Period I.

First, we must realize that the people of America lived one hundred and fifty-six years, or thirty-two years longer, as subjects of kings and monarchs of Europe than they have since lived as a free, self-governing people. We must wait another thirty-two years before we will have enjoyed the experience of a republic an equal length of time with that which we paid tribute to rulers over the sea for the privilege of being ruled.

The people, or the most of the people, during this one hundred and fifty-six years thought, or seemed to think, that in some mysterious way this virgin soil, which had been hidden from the eye of avarice and protected from the greed of aristocracy for numberless ages, had suddenly become the property of those men who were then held up to the world as kings (born by a special dispensation of God to live off the industry of and rule over the less cunning and more scrupulous mass of mankind), instead of belonging to all mankind in common, or to such as dared breast the storm and sea to escape the hardship of supporting an idle, worthless, useless aristocracy that could show no excuse for existence other than ignorance and man's willingness to become the packhorse of wrong and iniquity, so long as the agents of such wrong and iniquity permit him the use of sufficient fruits of his own toil to maintain life; hence at the end of the Second Period of America's growth the people were devoted to gain-getting, with little or no thought of government, and the New World was slowly but surely following in the footsteps of the Old, with all its misery and woe.

PERIOD III.

ENGLAND AND FRANCE IN AMERICA.
FROM 1758 TO 1783,

25 YEARS.

FROM THE OUTBREAK OF THE FRENCH AND INDIAN WAR TO CLOSE OF THE WAR OF THE REVOLUTION WHEN WASHINGTON RESIGNED HIS COMMISSION AS COMMANDER OF THE ARMY TO THE AMERICAN CONGRESS.

The reasons why Periods I, II, III and IV are so divided will be found in the explanations at the end of Period I.

PERIOD VI.

THE WAR FOR THE UNION.
FROM 1861 TO 1865,

4 YEARS.

FROM THE INAUGURATION OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN
AS PRESIDENT AND OUTBREAK OF CIVIL WAR TO THE
ASSASSINATION AND FUNERAL OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN
AFTER THE CLOSE OF THE REBELLION.

This four years is essentially a period by itself—a period in which the National household was at war with itself—a contest the like of which the world had never before beheld, four years of hatred and strife, of bloodshed and carnage, resulting in placing the stamp of disapproval on the doctrine that the body, soul and liberty of one man could be the property of another—a period in the history of the world as well as of America.

PERIOD VII.

THE NEW UNITED STATES.
FROM 1865 TO 1898,

33 YEARS.

FROM THE BEGINNING OF
THE ADMINISTRATION OF ANDREW JOHNSON AS PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES TO THE DESTRUCTION OF THE BATTLESHIP MAINE AND OUTBREAK OF THE SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR.

The subject-title of this period is "The New United States," and why? Because we begin this period with new ideas, new laws, new practices, new ways of doing things with corresponding new results. While it marks a period of dazzling greatness on one hand, it has as its background—its equal share of awful wretchedness on the other, so distressing that even the pen of the great historians are paralyzed in their attempts to record it. A new condition of people, a new United States, was made during that thirty-three years.

PERIOD VIII.

OUR COLONIAL EXPANSION.
FROM 1898 TO ——.

FROM THE BEGINNING OF THE
SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR TO——.

This period marks a new interpretation of the idea of a republican form of government. We have long since learned that kings, emperors and crowned heads could, consistent with the idea that permitted them to exist at all, go out beyond the limits of their provinces and purchase, subdue or conquer other lands and people, and ever after keep them in subjection, to their will and law, but when a like right was first claimed for a Republic, in which the lowest is equal before the law with the greatest, thousands stood aghast, questioning the wisdom of such a proposition, and the subject, at this writing, still being unsettled, we can only note the beginning of the period, and leave its ending to conjecture.

2356. What noted ex-President's death occurred on March 13, 1901? What great loss did our nation suffer in his death? What precedent, set by President Harrison on the death of ex-President Hayes, was followed by President McKinley? 2221–2222

2357. When and where did the capture of General Emilio Aguinaldo occur? By whom was he captured, and what promotion, as a reward, did his captor receive? How many men does Aguinaldo claim to have at one time commanded? 2225

2358. To what city was Aguinaldo conveyed, and what important action was immediately taken on his arrival? What good results are hoped for from these actions? In what manner did he compliment the American soldier? 2225

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

NOTE: THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE is perhaps the greatest State Paper in the world when considered from the standpoint of Right. Prior to 1776 the great nations of the world were governed and ruled by kings, emperors, and other monarchs. It was the prevailing idea that those great (?) people were especially endowed by God. But at some time somebody somewhere began to apply the God-given faculty of thought to the idea of human affairs, and that moment the Declaration of Independence was born, appearing as an infant in the weak meetings of a few brave men here and there who dared to incur the ill-will of the "powers that were" by declaring that "all men were equal," or should be. They were termed "traitors," "cranks," etc. As a child, we have the immortal document in the "Mecklenburg Declaration," and in 1776 it steps forth as a giant, striking the clutch of monarchy from three million souls and half the globe. Yet the Declaration of Independence and all it contemplates is but a Thought put into action. The following analysis and the questions on the grand old document are intended as thought-producers for you--to cause you to think. And after you have digested the list, then go to the Constitution, and ascertain how little the people have to do with this great Republic. Learn to think thoughts for yourself.

A "self-evident truth" is one so plain and free from doubt that no evidence or corroborative testimony is necessary to support it, or to have it understood or believed by all to whom it is stated; so plain, indeed, that to declare it will at once convince every fair-minded person of its truth and justice. Hence, when the framers of the Declaration of Independence wrote that "all men are created equal, and are endowed by the Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are the right to life, right to liberty, and right to pursue happiness; that to secure these rights (and for no other purpose) governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed;" the statement was so reasonable, and so much in harmony with the law of nature and nature's God, that they concluded that no explanation or excuse for such an assertion was then or ever would be necessary to have it admitted by all persons who lay any claim whatever to honesty and intelligence. It is only in these latter days that this great truth has been in any way questioned, and even now it must be admitted by the very persons who have recently attempted to establish a doubt of the truth of this, the first pillar-stone of our Republic, that if their efforts were stripped of all selfish or political purpose, it would be shown to be an attempt to deceive and defraud our people into abandoning the noblest expression of truth that has ever been uttered toward the emancipation of mankind from the oppressive wrongs of the designing.

The three unalienable rights enumerated in the Declaration of Independence are those rights that belong to man because he is a living, intelligent creature; those rights that come to him through creation, and not from any other man, body of men, government, or society. They are his because without them he could not fill that sphere in creation for which he was intended by the Creator; hence they are unalienable—that is, he can not contract them away himself, nor can any power on earth take them away from him without cause, and do right by doing so.

Life is that unseen something that seems to be the common heritage of all things in nature so long as they continue to be under natural conditions. We seem to draw it from an inexhaustible fountain that was here when we came, was here when the first creature began to live, and will be here when the last one disappears, if that time is to come. Hence it is ours to enjoy, but not to destroy or barter away; nor has any one or number of others any more right, control, or monopoly of it than we have. For that reason has no one person or combination of persons the right to take life away from us.

Hence life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness naturally depend on what God has made, and these things belong, or should belong, to all men as a common legacy or undivided family heritage. Governments should be instituted among men to take care of these things for the benefit and enjoyment of all men, and its chief aim should be to protect the weak and unwary against the schemes, laws, and systems of the strong or designing, by which the former might be deprived, either directly or indirectly, of what belongs or should belong to them in nature by the latter, or the laws and systems adopted for their aggrandizement and the despoliation of the less cunning or cruel.

Liberty, from the standpoint of the individual, is freedom to do what one wills to do without let or hinderance, presumably for the purpose of promoting his individual happiness or enjoyment, it being taken for granted that an intelligent being would not do aught that would make him unhappy or miserable. The naturally constituted man could only be happy and feel joyful by seeing all others happy and filled with gladness. It is the unnatural, cultivated inclinations that lead one individual to do wrong to another, thus interfering with the liberty and pursuit of happiness that naturally belong to the other; hence governments should be instituted among men for the purpose of restraining the one from wrong-doing, and to secure to the other those rights that belong to him by right of his being a living, intelligent creature.

While life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness are primarily independent ideas, each expressing a thought within itself, the three in fact are one in the higher and more sublime consideration of man in all his relations to his Creator and fellow-creatures; and I can not conceive of a better definition of its meaning as intended by the early law-makers of our country than this: Governments are (or should be) instituted among men for the purpose of securing to its citizens the full, free, uninterrupted enjoyment of the bounties of nature, seeing that none shall have less nor more of the natural heritage of man than each as an individual is entitled to. Since no one can possibly have more than his share unless some must have correspondingly less, all the natural facilities should be the property of all—that is, public property—and never privately controlled, monopolized, or owned.

1. What are the natural facilities on which life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness depend?

2. To whom belonged the natural facilities upon which depend life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness in the United States in 1776?

3. How does the present ownership and control of the natural facilities upon which depend life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness compare with their ownership and control at the time of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence?

4. If an individual can not contract his right to life away, can he contract away those natural facilities upon which his life depends?

5. If a just government can not without cause take away the life of a citizen, can it take away or grant a monopoly to one or more individuals of those natural facilities on which life depends?

6. If governments are instituted among men for the purpose of securing to men the right to life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness, is it not as much the function and bounden duty of governments to prohibit individuals from monopolizing those natural facilities upon which these inalienable rights depend as to prohibit individuals from taking the life of others, or from depriving others of liberty or the pursuit of happiness?

7. When should the form of any government be changed?

8. What has experience shown as to the inclination of mankind to change their form of government, no matter how oppressive? 2205

9. When is the duty to change a form of government imperative? 2206

10. What wrongs enumerated in the Declaration of Independence were committed against us by the King of England and his British ministry, constituting the English Government?

11. Were we to commit or attempt to commit the same wrongs against another people as the British Government committed against us, would we be equally guilty with the government of England of wrong-doing?

12. In a republic can there be such a thing or idea as "the government" as we express it concerning a monarchy having a royal family?

13. In a republic where all men are created equal, can there be some not possessed of equal rights with all? Can a portion of a republic be subject to another portion and the government still remain a republic?
